How many hours do absolute beginners need in order to pass the driving test?

According to the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) most people fail their driving test because they are not ready. Those who pass their driving test have had, on average, about 45 hours of professional training, combined with 22 hours of private practice, claims the DSA. The DSA says that candidates who combine professional instruction with private practice are more successful on the test.

How women and men compare:

	Female	Male
Practical test pass rate	40%	46%
Average number test taken to pass	2.12	1.87
Months taken to learn and pass test	14.6	12.0
Hours of tuition with qualified instructor	51.9	36.2
